Mr. Moore was a ripe and intelligent Christian. He was brought up in a christian home, his father being a preacher in the M. E. Church and for many years Mr. Moore was an active and honored member of that communion. On October 3, 1897, he united by certificate with the Oak Grove Presbyterian Church, and brought into that church the same sturdy faith and active zeal that had hitherto characterized his religious life. It was well nigh inevitable that the activities of such a man would be in demand for official position and so on October 11, 1903 he was elected and on November 22nd following he was ordained and installed to the eldership in Oak Grove church. By his active and sympathetic loyalty he endeared himself to the two pastors who served the church during his official connection with it and they learned more and more to lean on him as on a strong staff. His Christian activities were not confined to his home church. As a traveling man he was deeply interesting in the order of The Gideons and took great delight in their work of putting Bibles in the hotels of the State. In fact he lost no opportunity to attend to his Christian duties and took delight in helping along every good cause. For several years he was treasurer of the church and superintendent of the Sunday School. Of course his manifold duties occasioned a great loss when he removed to a distant state,

In character he was like Nathaniel, 'an Israelite in whom was no guile.' His speech was always tempered with charity and his heart full of forbearance. Many years of intimate personal acquaintanceship gave the writer of this sketch abundant opportunity of knowing of knowing and appreciating the sterling worth of his Christian character. The thought of death could not rob him of the peace that faith gave and so peace-fully he answered the call to enter ino the rest of God's people. The compan on of the many years of his married life and his daughter, Mrs. Forrest Hill, remain to cherish the tender memory of their beloved dead.
